

THE NEW EAST BAY AIDS MEMORIAL GARDEN

HELP US CREATE A GARDEN OF HOPE

The East Bay boasts a rich history and diverse culture; however, there's no monument that memorializes, honors nor recognizes HIV's impact on the community. To address this, the POZ+ group at East Bay Getting to Zero is leading the creation of the East Bay's first AIDS Memorial Garden to be built within The Gardens at Lake Merritt.

Site location in The Gardens of Lake Merritt

The project kicks off with The Dr. Dawn K. Smith Memorial Bridge, honoring Dr. Smith, a champion of PrEP and a beloved leader within the AIDS community. The new bridge will serve as an anchor for the future memorial garden.

Proposed design of the new bridge

Rooted in Oakland's landscape and legacy, the garden will honor those living with HIV, remember those lost, and foster intergenerational dialogue about the HIV and LGBTQ+ experience. Conceived as an ecotherapy space, it will offer healing, reflection, and hands-on care—transforming remembrance into shared community connection.

Hands-on tending the garden will provide healing and connection.
